

Security Benefit Carries on Amid COVID-19

CEOs 'working toward a moving target'

The Topeka Capital-Journal, March 26, 2020

As fears of the coronavirus have grown, Security Benefit CEO Mike Kiley and other Topeka-based executives have had to decide whether to carry on with business as usual or have employees work remotely — a decision complicated by rapidly changing information surrounding the spread of COVID-19.